Pumpkin Patch Party is for families who have a child with cancer

Every fall Childhood Cancer Foundation of Southern California (CCFSC) invites children with cancer and their families to the Live Oak Canyon Christmas Tree Farm's pumpkin patch for the annual Pumpkin Patch Party.

The party, in its 13th year, is today from 10 a.m. to noon.

Willie and Greg Palmer, owners of the Live Oak Canyon Christmas Tree Farm, give free reign to all of the children for two hours where they may have free hay rides, use the petting zoo, explore the giant hay castle, wall climbing and so much more. CCFSC will be giving out costumes, pumpkins and other Halloween decorations and sweets.

This is to provide an opportunity for newly diagnosed families to gain hope by seeing other children who have survived.

The sponsors are Live Oak Canyon Christmas Tree Farm, CSM Bakery Products, National Charity League and Southern California Edison.

Receiving non-profit status in September of 1981, Childhood Cancer Foundation of Southern California, Inc. (CCFSC) is now more than 700 families strong committed to serving children with cancer and their families throughout Southern California emotionally, financially, educationally and with emergency assistance. CCFSC works directly with the families to identify their need for support.

The pumpkin patch is at 32335 Live Oak Canyon Road, Redlands.
